Test 11

The moon

The moon has a face like the clock in the hall;
 She shines on thieves on the garden wall,
 On streets and fields and harbor quays;
 And birdies asleep in the forks of trees.
 The squalling cat and the squeaking mouse,
 The howling dog by the door of the house,
 The bat that lies in bed at noon,
 All love to be out by the light of the moon.
 But all the things that belong to the day
 Cuddle to sleep to be out of her way;
 And flowers and children close their eyes
 Till up in the morning the sun shall rise.

Test 12

The Ugly Duckling

Once there was a little brown duck. All summer long she sat on her nest and waited patiently for her eggs to hatch. She had six eggs, five white and one brown. The brown egg puzzled her a great deal for it was so different from the others. However, she took great care to keep it just as warm as the rest.

The days passed and one by one the white eggs hatched. Only the big brown egg remained in the nest. The duck was worried. Suddenly, she heard a small crack. The egg was hatching at last! Out scrambled a strange looking bird covered in dull brown fluff. He did not look at all like the mother duck's other pretty golden chicks.

Wherever he went, the poor ugly duckling was laughed at and teased until one day he decided he could bear it no longer. He would have to run away!

One night, he crept out of the farmyard and ran quite a long way. There he lay down and rested by night. The next day, he began to wander around. After a time, he came to a small, tumbledown cottage. He crept through a crack in the door into a warm little room. An old woman lived in the cottage with her cat and her hen, and when they discovered the little duckling next morning, they were most surprised.

'What sort of a creature are you?' asked the hen haughtily. 'Can you lay eggs?' The duckling shook his head.

'Can you ruffle your fur when you are angry, or purr when you are pleased?' asked the snooty cat. Again the duckling shook his head in shame.

'What a useless animal you are,' declared the hen. 'You can neither lay eggs nor purr. You can't stay here'

But the old lady smiled kindly. 'Let him stay for a little while. He may learn to do something useful in time.' And so the duckling lived in the cottage with the old lady, the cat and the hen, and the weeks passed happily.

(A) Answer the following questions.

1. Why did the brown egg puzzle the little brown duck?

2. Why did the little duckling decide to run away?

3. Who lived in the little cottage?

.....

4. What did the hen ask duckling?
